

Early map of London's underground railways

Anonymous.
 Underground Map of London.

Dangerfield Printing Company, London; 1919. 275 x 345mm.

£600

Published just after the end of World War One, the lines are shown with reasonable geographic accuracy against an outline of the major roads. The only names above ground are open spaces, including Regents Park, Kew Gardens, Hampstead Heath and Brent Reservoir.
